THE IMAGE STUDY

Look closer.

These four examples show how one portrait can become a cohesive visual story without losing tactile detail.

01 THE WOMAN

04 THE IRIS

07 THE LIP

06 THE HOLLOW

THE METHOD

Lock the face first.

The hero is your anchor image. Generate it first, choose the closest match to your real portrait, then reuse that reference for every detail shot.

UPLOAD YOUR PHOTO

Start with a clear, front-facing photo of yourself or your model, with permission to use the likeness.

02

MAKE THE HERO

Run prompt 01 and select the variation that keeps the original face most accurately.

03

REUSE THE REFERENCE

For frames 02-08, attach the same portrait and your approved hero image whenever the tool supports image references.

04

PRESERVE THE TEXTURE

Keep natural pores and correct colors. Fine dried salt is not makeup or glitter; the overcast light should not turn golden.

PROMPT / 01

THE WOMAN

The hero portrait

COPY / ADAPT THE PROMPT

Use the uploaded reference photo as the only identity reference. Create a chest-up coastal beauty portrait of the exact same adult woman after a cold ocean swim. Preserve her facial proportions, natural eye color, eyebrows, lips, skin tone and hairstyle. Wet, dark hair falls over one shoulder; a small gold hoop earring and bare collarbones remain visible. Include a few fine dried sea-salt flecks and realistic seawater droplets. Calm direct gaze, softly closed lips, grey-blue ocean out of focus, flat silver overcast daylight near 6000K, an 85mm portrait lens, muted natural color, realistic unretouched skin.

Keep the face faithful to your photo. No glam retouching.

PROMPT / 02

THE PORE

Texture is the subject

REFERENCE IMAGE + LOCKED IDENTITY

Preserve the same woman across every frame.

COPY / ADAPT THE PROMPT

From the same locked-identity reference, create an extreme macro of the inner cheek beside the nose. Fill the frame with authentic pores, fine vellus hair, subtle uneven tone, a few minute flakes of dried white sea salt between pores, and two tiny clear droplets. Cool soft overcast daylight around 6000K, razor-thin depth of field, tactile macro-beauty photography, understated gray-warm grading. Preserve natural skin texture and realistic scale of every grain; avoid skin smoothing, makeup and artificial sparkle.

Proof that detail feels more real than perfection.

PROMPT / 03

THE MARK

A detail that feels human

REFERENCE IMAGE + LOCKED IDENTITY

Preserve the same woman across every frame.

COPY / ADAPT THE PROMPT

Using the same woman from the first image, isolate a naturally occurring small beauty mark or distinctive detail already visible in the reference photo. If none exists, select a real skin detail rather than inventing a mole. One tiny clear drop rests just beneath the feature. A damp dark hair strand crosses a far frame corner. Show fine pores, faint salt on the cheekbone and subtle peach fuzz in muted silver daylight. Shoot as an extreme macro with a shallow focus plane. Keep the original skin markings and anatomy faithful.

Do not add invented freckles or beauty marks.

PROMPT / 04

THE IRIS

A whole sky in one eye

COPY / ADAPT THE PROMPT

Create an extreme macro crop of one eye from the same adult woman in the uploaded reference image. Preserve her actual iris color and shape, with fine radial fibers, a subtle reflection of the pale overcast sky on the wet cornea and naturally separated damp lashes. Let brow hairs, skin pores and a few tiny salt flecks beneath the eye remain visible. Use cool silver coastal daylight near 6000K, an extremely shallow depth of field, photographic texture, no mascara, no digitally enhanced iris color and no cosmetic smoothing.

Preserve the real eye color from the source portrait.

PROMPT / 05

THE CARTILAGE

The quiet gold detail

REFERENCE IMAGE + LOCKED IDENTITY

Preserve the same woman across every frame.

COPY / ADAPT THE PROMPT

Make an extreme macro of the ear of the same woman, keeping the earlobe structure and jewelry consistent with the reference portrait. A thin gold hoop rests in the earlobe with one clear bead of seawater hanging beneath it. Damp dark hair is tucked behind the ear, with tiny droplets on individual strands. Retain fine skin texture and faint salt at the jaw edge. Soft silver overcast light creates one controlled glint on the gold, while the background stays blurred and muted. Photoreal, never glossy or over-polished.

One small highlight gives the composition focus.

PROMPT / 06

THE HOLLOW

Salt traces the collarbone

COPY / ADAPT THE PROMPT

Extreme macro crop of the hollow above the same woman's collarbone and the natural curve of the bone. Make the skin in the hollow completely dry: no standing water or wet sheen in that area. Trace a thin, uneven line of fine dried white sea salt along the clavicle, with pores, soft body hair and very subtle goosebumps visible. The ends of damp dark hair fall near the shoulder at one edge. Light with flat overcast silver daylight around 6000K and preserve a quiet grey shadow in the hollow. Authentic close-focus texture, no airbrushing.

The hollow should stay dry; the salt line stays fine.

PROMPT / 07

THE LIP

Real lines, real texture

COPY / ADAPT THE PROMPT

Create an extreme macro photograph of the same woman's natural lips, held softly together or slightly parted as in the reference portrait. Preserve their actual contour, scale and natural pink-brown tone. Fine vertical lip lines and natural dryness remain visible. A few minuscule white sea-salt grains sit along the lower lip, with one clear seawater drop gathering at the outer corner. Show real skin pores and upper-lip peach fuzz under soft, overcast, silver daylight near 6000K. No lipstick, gloss, filler effect or smoothing; realistic macro focus and desaturated color.

Resist the urge to blur authentic lip texture.

PROMPT / 08

THE RIDGE

The last tactile frame

REFERENCE IMAGE + LOCKED IDENTITY

Preserve the same woman across every frame.

COPY / ADAPT THE PROMPT

Extreme macro crop of the bridge of the same woman's nose, angled diagonally through the composition. Preserve her real nose proportions from the portrait. Show distinctly visible but natural pores, fine skin texture and a very thin uneven trail of dried white sea-salt crystals along the ridge. One tiny clear seawater droplet sits beside the nostril, while wet lashes are softly blurred at the edge of the frame. Flat silver overcast daylight around 6000K, subtle grey shadows and razor-thin macro depth of field. Never change facial anatomy or make the skin look plastic.

Small details, naturally imperfect and believable.

THE FINAL CHECK

Make the texture believable.

Use these art-direction rules across all eight images to keep your series authentic.

| | |
|---|---|
| LIGHT | Flat, cloudy silver light. Keep highlights gentle; no golden-hour look. |
| COLOR | Muted skin tones with blue-grey atmosphere. The same color treatment across every frame. |
| SKIN | Visible pores, fine fuzz, tiny lines and irregularity. No cosmetic plastic finish. |
| SALT | Fine white crystals and a few droplets. Never glitter, heavy powder or oversized flakes. |
| IDENTITY | Same facial features, eye color, bone structure, hair, jewelry and recognizable detail. |
| CROPPING | Leave a clear subject. One detail per image; no split panels or text on the exported photos. |

Make every detail count.

Create your eight images, choose the four strongest details and build a seamless carousel or an editorial landing hero. The original portrait should stay recognizable from the first frame to the last.
